a failure to determine these questions before another national election.

CONCLUSION.

The closing year of the decade, replete with blessings, for which we owe to the Giver of all good our reverent acknowledgment for the untimely harmony of our foreign relations, for the decay of sectional animosities, triumph of our nation and manufacturing industries, for the prevalence of health, the spread of intelligence, the consolidation of the public credit for the growth of the country in all elements of national greatness. For these and other blessings we should all rejoice and be glad. I trust that under the inspiration of this common property and the impulses of the common good, the duties of the Congress and the Executive may be happily united.

THE TARIFF.

The Commission makes its Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The report of the tariff commission was today submitted to the Representatives by the president of the commission, John D. McMillan, of New York, and comprehensive document with an appendix equally formidable. The report gives a description of the work of the commission, during which twenty-seven cities were visited, ranging from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and a total of over 600 witnesses were heard and 2000 pages of testimony were taken.

The second part is devoted to the work of deliberation and covers the period of five weeks spent in going over, item by item, the various articles of the tariff, and the various principles upon which the commission was bound to act were first considered. The commission agreed they must recognize the existing economic system of the country which has been in practice for years, and its principal elements in determining the tariff were not to be altered, and, secondly, the commission limited its work to the revision of the tariff in order to bring it into a wholly new system.

A close watch was kept on the crew, but nothing was discovered to warrant suspicion. The captain, although members of the crew say that Capt.
